Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was agreed to if an agreement was reached, or any other comments: Applicant argued in general that the prior art does not teach all the limitations of at least claims 1 and 6 and the "Official Notice", used to compensate for the deficiencies in the prior art, does not address the missing elements and the Applicant requires that the Examiner provide a reference in support of the "Official Notice". In reply, the Examiner asserts that the claims, as presented, were broadly interpreted and that the "Official Notice" does in fact compensate for the deficiencies noted in the prior art as featured in the Office Action. Further, the "Official Notice" does disclose materials well known in the art and these materials or systems are easily identifiable (subject to easy demonstration). To this end, no document will be provided to support that AOL, still in business, has been using the system described in the "Official Notice". In the end, Applicant agrees to amend the claims as suggested by the Examiner to focus more on "providing a credit to a product user and to a distributor, who distributes the product to the user, based on the use of the product by the user" .
